CHINA ⇄ BRAZIL MARKET INTELLIGENCE ·
NOT TRANSLATION

I help Chinese companies enter Brazil without losing money to cultural mistakes, regulatory surprises and wrong pricing.

THE PROBLEM

- 1

Cultural errors
Brand names that backfire, wrong positioning. One redo can sink a launch.
- 2

Regulatory surprises
INMETRO / ANATEL / import tax hits at the port. One seized container = weeks of delay.
- 3

Wrong pricing
Crushed by local competitors or invisible on Mercado Livre. 3 wrong months = burned budget.

WHAT I SELL

- 1 · Brazil Market Entry Audit

¥2,500

5 days. Competitive landscape, regulatory roadmap, channel plan, 3 action items.
- 2 · “Brazil Desk” retainer

¥4,500/mo

Execution, not advice: Mercado Livre store, Portuguese listings, competitor prices, regulatory alerts, monthly call.
- 3 · Market Entry Execution

¥15–25k

Distributor search, trade-show representation, contract negotiation support, 90-day launch.

WHY ME

Since 2010 in China · Guangzhou-based	Fluent Portuguese, not a translator
中文 Mandarin at negotiation level	Guangzhou based in China, not in Lisbon

The reverse bridge too: the same two-way bridge for Brazilian and Portuguese companies entering China: Canton Fair accompaniment and a monthly “your desk in Guangzhou” retainer.

IF CAUGHT OFF-GUARD · 15 SECONDS

“Chinese companies lose real money entering Brazil to stuff that’s totally preventable: wrong pricing, regulatory surprises, cultural misreads. I prevent that. I’m Portuguese, 16 years in China, Guangzhou-based, I negotiate in Mandarin. They pay ¥2,500 for the first audit, ¥4,500 a month if they want me running their Brazil presence.”

Status, say it plainly: “Pre-revenue, soft-launching. Pricing set and being tested with first contacts.”
